

Celebrating the Heroes Among Us

Everyday Hero Daniel Timlin
15 Year Transition Teacher
New Mexico School for the Deaf

"I've always wanted to be a teacher to be sure students with disabilities or challenges got a fair chance to have a productive and contributing life. I was fortunate to have a special education teacher remove many barriers for me during my middle and high school years. I wanted to pass along the same and more to support today's youth."

Community Connecting

Leveraging learning that translates into community opportunities

As we become more innovative thinkers, we are needing more clarity on how to connect to our community. Josie Sparks will provide not only testimonies but clear examples of what innovative thinking looks like in the United States during the pandemic. Josie will also be sharing what the next steps are when trying to stay connected while being disconnected. How can we connect those dots in our paperwork, you ask? Well, let's be honest, writing goals and supporting them with strong case notes can sometimes be character building and somewhat confusing. Josie will be giving examples of how to connect the dots from a person's skills, gifts, interest, and activity to capturing individual outcomes in our daily documentation.
